

LABOR LEADERS TAKING STEPS OF RETALIATION

MEN INSTRUMENTAL IN ARREST OF ALLEGED DYNAMITERS TAKEN INTO CUSTODY AT INDIANAPOLIS.

PRISONERS RUSH WESTWARD

Meanwhile McNamara and His Two Companions Are Being Rushed To Los Angeles As Fast As Possible By Burns Detectives.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Indianapolis, April 25.—Walter
Drew, W. J. Ford, Frank Fox, A. F.
Hader, accused of kidnapping in connection with the arrest of the alleged dynamiters, released on heavy bonds after being in jail part of the day.

Has Evidence.
[BY UNITED PRESS.]

Indianapolis, Ind., April 25.—That James W. McNamara will be identified as the man giving an alias of J.
H. Arice, who purchased dynamite from the Giant Powder Company of Los Angeles, two days before the Times explosion, was Burns' assertion today.

Burns said McNamara was wanted for dynamiting the Llewellyn Iron Works not the Times.

He said he could prove J. J. McNamara furnished the money and promoted both jobs.

Plan Big Meeting.
Chicago, April 25.—The Chicago Federation of Labor has called a meeting to be held Sunday at which leaders declare funds will be raised and plans made for the defense of John J. Mc-Namara, his brother and Orlo Mc-Namara.

The present case is a repetition of the Mayor-Haywood-Pettibone case, they assert, and the same plan will be carried out for the prisoners' defense.
A preliminary sum of one hundred thousand dollars will be forwarded to Los Angeles within a few days.

Fear Writ.
Denver, April 25.—Fearing from possible legal intervention in the shape of habeas corpus writs, the eleven deten-tees guarding John McNamara, his brother and Orlo McNamara are today appealing towards Los Angeles on the Santa Fe train No. 3. They should reach Los Angeles Thursday.
They all arrived at La Junta, Colorado, late last night.

Not Labor Unions.
Los Angeles, Cal., April 25.—No attempt will be made by the state to implicate labor unions in the destruction of the Times in the McNamara and McNamara case said District Attorney Fredericks today. He believes the men guilty and would make every attempt to convict them.

Excitement Intense.
Excitement is intense as the arrival of the prisoners draws nearer. Trouble may result. A general strike of all unions may follow the proposed building trades strike on May first.

Men Arrested.
Indianapolis, April 25.—Arrested late last night on a kidnapping charge Walter Drew of New York, counsel for the Breckers Union, Frank Fox, driver of the automobile in which John J. McNamara was kidnapped, W. J.
Ford assistant district attorney of Los Angeles, were bound over to the grand jury by Justice Manning today.

Heavy Bail.
Ford and Drew were held in ten thousand dollars bonds and Fox on five thousand. They were lodged in jail pending bail. Burns has disappeared. James Duff of Burns operative was arrested today.

Denies Report.
Washington, April 25.—Chief of the government secret service Wilke today indignantly denied his men have had any connection with the labor case.

Resolution Introduced.
A resolution demanding an investigation of the arrest of John J. Mc-Namara at Indianapolis, was introduced in the House today by Herzog, the Wisconsin socialist member.

CONVENTION OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

For the Southeast District of the State is Being Held in Footville
This Week.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Footville, April 25.—Opening last night at eight o'clock, the first district convention of the Christian church, this district, representing southeastern Wisconsin, is being held in this village. Last night's session was opened by Rev. F. A. Ambrose, pastor of the local church. This was responded to by Rev. M. W. Williams of the Second church of Milwaukee.
Following the address of these two men, Miss Adelaide Gull Frost, a missionary, who has recently returned from India, gave a very interesting talk on her work there.

The convention opened this morning at six o'clock. Following the morning meeting the Ladies' Aid of the local church served a dinner to those present in the basement of the church. The afternoon was given over to the discussion of the Sunday school, under the leadership of Rev.
J. H. Bullock of Highland Center.

Those who are present at this convention from out of town are: Rev.
J. C. Wilson, Milwaukee; Rev. F. J.
Horn, Milwaukee; Rev. N. A. Borgh, Beloit; Rev. J. H. Bullock, Richland Center, and Rev. P. L. Van Barden, Green Bay, superintendent of missions in this state. Miss Ida Townsend of Waupun, president of the C. W. B.
M. of this state, is also present.

lery. The government loss was slight.

GRAND JURY MEETS FOR MURDER CASE

Special venire met today in Mal-stone, Vt., to consider case of Arthur Dean Accused Of Murder.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Maldenstone, Vt., April 25.—A special grand jury convened here today to take up the case of Arthur Dean, the 18-year-old youth who has been confined in jail for some time on suspicion of having murdered his mother and sister. The tragedy occurred at the Dean home on March 9 last, on the day of the murder young Dean, with a rifle slung over his shoulder, entered the home of a neighbor and calmly told the person there that his mother, Mrs.
George Dean, and his sister, Miss Nina Dean had been shot and killed. Neighbors rushed to the Dean home and found the body of Miss Nina in a pool of blood on the floor of the front hall while that of Mrs. Dean was in a bed room on the upper floor of the house.
There were bullet wounds in both bodies. Young Dean was taken into custody a day or two later, but all efforts to induce him to make a confession failed.

the auspices of the Postal Progress League, a conference of delegates representing nearly all parts of the country met at the New Willard Hotel today to discuss ways and means to bring about an extension of the parole post system in the United States.
It is probable Congress will be asked to pass bills providing for a general parole post up to eleven pounds at 8 cents a pound, 1 cent for each two ounces, a cheap local parole post on the rural routes and insurance of all mail matter.

DENEEN URGES WORK ON DEEPWATERWAYS IN MESSAGE TODAY

Illinois Governor Advocates United Efforts of State and Nation in Perfecting Waterway System.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Springfield, Ill., April 25.—Governor Deneen today sent a special message to the legislature urging the immediate appointment of a commission to work with the army engineers in arranging for the cooperation of the state and national governments in the construction of a deep waterway. The governor quotes from the report of army engineers showing that the canal can be completed for the twenty million voted by the people of Illinois.
Governor Deneen also urges that steps be taken to secure for the public the water power rights along the canal and prevent these rights from falling into the hands of private companies.

in March. The fatalities during February were 43,508.

Most interest- ing Wants.....

Probably no part of a newspaper is so close to the vital personal interest of the readers as the Want Column. The Wants reflect the individual needs of scores of people as well as enumerate the requirements of businesses and households.

The manufacturer, the jobber, the retailer, the professional man, as well as the thrifty housewife—all find the want column of inestimable value in many ways.

Suppose there's need of workers in the factory, suppose office helpers are required, suppose the cook or maid has given notice of leaving—in all such instances the first thought is what to do in the Want Ad Columns offer today?

Gazette Want Ads are quick in bringing returns and inexpensive in cost.

Churchmen in Session.
Washington, D. C., April 25.—With Justice Lutton of the United States Supreme Court as honorary chairman and many leading bishops, rectors and laymen of the Episcopal church in attendance from all parts of the country, the twenty-ninth annual Episcopal Church Congress was opened this morning with religious services in St.
John's Church. The subsequent sessions lasting until Saturday will be held in Continental Hall. The revision of the Book of Common Prayer to meet present-day conditions, the effect of woman's suffrage on religious and educational institutions, and the necessity of unity in missions are the leading subjects scheduled for discussion.

IMPORTANT WITNESS GAVE TESTIMONY IN THE BRIBERY CASE

Duluth Lumberman Told Illinois Investigating Committee What He Knew of Hines' Connection With "Jackpot."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Springfield, Ill., April 25.—W. H.
Cook, a lumberman of Duluth, Minn., testified before the bribery committee today that Hines told him that Lorner was settled upon as Senator as the most reliable man for the lumber interests. Cook also told of overhearing Hines on the telephone tell someone he called Governor, that Hopkins must not be re-elected and that he would be in Springfield on the next train with all the necessary money.
Also that at a later talk Hines told him (Cook) that a mistake had been made and instead of talking to former Governor Yates as he supposed he was connected with Governor Deneen.
Hines was really excited, said Cook, and declared if the story ever got out a lot of prominent Illinois and Minnesota men would be ruined.

Planned.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, April 25.—Postmasters of the country are to be subjected to rigid investigation by congress. The House committee on expenditures in the postoffice will tomorrow report the resolution providing for such an inquiry. The committee is to ascertain how much actual time postmasters devoted to the service of the department, their outside business affiliations, political activities, and whether they are personally active in campaign work, especially with reference to the collection of political assessments.

SOCIAL UNION AS HOST TO LADIES

MOST SUCCESSFUL SEASON
CLOSED WITH LADIES' NIGHT
BANQUET AT Y. M. C. A.
LAST EVENING.

A MOST ENJOYABLE EVENT

All Elements Combined to Make the Occasion One of the Pleasantest of the Season.

With every arrangement complete in the minutest detail, from the decorations and the banquet to the various numbers of a most interesting program which abounded in wit and cleverly turned compliments, the final meeting of the Social Union club for this season in the ladies' night banquet at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening, was a most successful social event.

There were over three hundred and fifty members of the club and their guests who sat down at the banquet board shortly before seven o'clock. The four tables which extended the length of the room were beautifully lighted by varicolored Chinese lanterns supplied with electric bulbs, which shed a soft brilliancy over the banqueters. Cut roses were appropriate favors and the elaborate menu was faultlessly served under the auspices of the ladies' auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. The menu consisted:

- | | |
|---------------------|----------|
| Bouillon | Saltines |
| Radishes | Olives |
| Pressed Veal | Cold Ham |
| Escalloped Potatoes | |
| Parker House Rolls | |
| Green Peas | |
| Pineapple Salad | Wafers |
| Strick Ice Cream | |
| Cake | Coffee |

During the dinner hour the Janesville Symphony Orchestra, a musical organization recently formed, under the direction of Prof. J. S. Taylor, discoursed most delightful music, and for the first number on the program played an overture, "Martha," by Flotow.

Rev. J. C. Hazen was the leader and acted in the capacity of toastmaster in a pleasing manner introducing each number on the program with appropriate remarks. The general topic for the evening was "The Coming Race," and W. H. Dougherty considered "The Young Man of the Future" in that connection.

With witty thrusts, first at the toastmaster, and then at the ladies, in fact at any person who was suggested to him, he kept the audience in continual good humor. He took occasion to denounce woman's suffrage and stated that he would recommend as the main issue for the ladies that they should get joint ownership and control of the pocket-book, for with that in her power, he said, the woman could go out and control any number of the men's votes.

In a more serious manner the speaker pointed out that the American young man of the future would have a rich heritage, consisting of education, institutions, and financial assets, which he must control wisely and honestly. His opportunities will be great, but with them all it was to be hoped that he would not forget his civic duties; that he would remember the cause of freedom; and that the love of his country and all that patriotism means will be inherent in his character.

"We have an obligation to discharge toward the young man of the future," said the speaker, "and it is our duty to see that he receives the right inspiration and encouragement to serve his country and his race in a manner in which justice and loyalty prevails and where there is no special privilege to any class or kind."

The ladies' quartette, composed of Misses Nott and Anderson and Messdames Paris and Doane, sang several selections which drew forth much merited applause, and Miss Ruth Humphrey, in the charming manner peculiar to her, gave a reading, "The Yale-Harvard Boat Race."

Mrs. E. E. Sutherland presented the fourth, "The Young Woman of the Future," and took the opportunity to point out the important place which that individual would hold in the affairs of the coming age. She pointed out that the woman of today was receiving the best of educational advantages, better even than the men. They are receiving the general training which will fit them for household duties and also special training which will allow them to be independent and capable of making their own way.

She did not deplore this tendency on the part of the woman to take part in the business and industrial world. Nor was it thought that this would in any way affect the home life except to make it more perfect and natural. Equality of interest would be the resulting factor from the present tendencies which would make for betterment all along the line.

Mrs. Sutherland closed with the suggestion that she did not know why the members of the Social Union were considering the young woman of the future when most of them were more interested, and if they aren't, they ought to be, in the young woman of the present.

Following several selections by the Lotus male quartette composed of Messrs. Schoof, Van Pool, Taylor and Levey, A. J. Gibbons was introduced as "the speaker of the evening," with "Woman, Oh Woman!" as his topic.

Mrs. Gibbons took occasion to relate a number of funny stories and interspersed throughout his talk bits of humor which called forth peals of laughter from his listeners.

He also touched upon the matter of woman's suffrage as one of the prevailing topics of the day and had many pertinent remarks to make regarding it. In his opinion it would only serve to increase the now overcrowded list of feminine troubles and he wondered at what would be the result. However he was kind enough to outline the Utopia which such a state of affairs as woman's rights would bring about, in which all evils would be eradicated and by means of which life would be one vast world of sunshine, rivaling the happiness and splendor of the Elysian fields of ancient lore. He ended his address with the statement which might be taken as the only thing possible on the part of do-

ELABORATE PLANS FOR ANNUAL BALL

Edgerton Royal Neighbors Will Entertain Tomorrow Evening—Other Edgerton News.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Edgerton, April 25.—What promises to be another social event in Edgerton will occur tomorrow, Wednesday, evening in Academy hall, when the Royal Neighbors will give their annual ball. Many invitations have been issued and the event promises a large attendance. Thompson's orchestra of Madison has been engaged and a concert program will be rendered from 8 to 10 o'clock. All former events of this order always proved pleasant social functions and it is expected that the one tomorrow evening will be no exception.

Personal.
Miss Mabel White returned from Fortuna Monday, having been spending the past month at the parental home.

A. H. Wachlin leaves tomorrow for Clintonville, Wis., to join a general contractor in cement work.

Robert, the 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hansen, is expected to return home tomorrow, having been in Janesville for the past three weeks where he submitted to an operation for an abscess in back of the left ear. Dr. Thorne of Janesville had the case in charge.

Monday evening a pleasant company of young people, twenty in number, surprised Louis Wilman, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Fred Clark, one mile north of the city, the occasion being the young man's twenty-first birthday anniversary. The company arrived upon the occasion in right royal spirits and spent the evening most pleasantly in the playing of various games. Numerous gifts in remembrance of the day were bestowed upon the young man and an elegant supper late in the evening brought the happy occasion to a close.

BURGLARS AT WORK IN CLINTON FRIDAY

Cash Amounting To Over $5.00 and Other Articles Were Taken From Dallman's Hardware Store.

Clinton, April 24.—Burglars unlocked the front door of Dallman's hardware store Friday night and helped themselves to the change in the cash register, amounting to $5.04, some razors and a revolver. The front door was discovered unlocked about 1:30 p. m. by night watch. Almond Baldwin and Mr. Dallman was notified and came down and locked it, thinking he or his clerks had simply gone out and forgot to lock it. He made no investigation and went back home.

One of the clerks on opening up Saturday morning and having occasion to go to the cash register, found that the customary change list therein was not there. He called Mr. Dallman and the loss of money and cutlery was discovered.

When Arthur Pye, barber next door, came down Saturday morning he discovered his razors gone, although his doors had been locked again. It is thought that the work was done by local talent.

DAME NATURE HINTS
When the Food is Not Sulted.
When Nature gives her signal that something is wrong it is generally with the food; the old dame is always faithful and one should act at once.

To put off the change is to risk that which may be irremediable. An Arizona man says:

"For years I could not safely eat any breakfast, I tried all kinds of breakfast foods, but they were all soft, starchy messes, which gave me distressing headaches. I drank strong coffee, too, which appeared to benefit me at the time, but added to the headaches afterwards. Toast and coffee were no better, for I found the toast very constipating.

"A friend persuaded me to quit coffee and the starchy breakfast foods, and use Postum and Grape-Nuts instead. I shall never regret taking his advice.

"The change they have worked in me is wonderful. I now have no more of the distressing sensations in my stomach after eating, and I never have any headaches. I have gained 12 pounds in weight and feel better in every way. Grape-Nuts makes a delicious as well as a nutritious dish, and I find that Postum is easily digested and never produces dyspepsia symptoms."

PROPOSE CHANGE IN CLASS DAY EXERCISE

Has Been Suggested That Physical Culture Exercises Take Place of Regular Program.

At a meeting of the senior class this morning, a change in the usual program of graduation was proposed by Prof. H. C. Buell. The change, as it was outlined, will consist in a variation of the usual "Class Day" exercises and instead of the usual program in the evening, there would be substituted drills and other exercises as they are taught in the physical training classes of the school.

The object of this change would be to present to the public the work of the new department that has been established in the school. These exercises would be participated in by the girls of the graduating class and would be held in the afternoon at the Court House park if possible, and if not there, then in the auditorium of the high school. Nothing definite was decided by the class but the matter was left over for further discussion and will be voted on in the near future.

The deceased was born in the town of Grafton, Kossuth county, New York, on the 25th day of June, 1845. In the spring of 1852 he came to Janesville with his parents and lived on a farm near this city since that time. Mr. Hayner possessed many fine qualities which made his character a noble one. He was a staunch Methodist from his early manhood and his love of right and justice won him a host of friends.

His wife passed away some two and a half years ago, and he leaves but one son, Charles H. Hayner, who lives on the old home farm, to mourn the loss of a kind father. The funeral will be held at the home Thursday afternoon, April 27, at half past two.

Doctors Advised Operation--Decided To Try Great Kidney Remedy

I want to tell you in a few words what Dr. Kliner's Swamp-Root did for me, believing that my testimony may do some other suffering person a great deal of good.

About six years ago, I was dangerously ill, consulted three doctors, all of whom said I had kidney trouble. One of the doctors analyzed my urine and reported that I had gravel, and further said that in order to regain my health and life, an operation would be necessary. I did not want to be operated on as I was afraid that I would not recover. Someone told me of Dr. Kliner's Swamp-Root and said it was a reliable medicine for kidney trouble, so I decided to try it and to Mr. Rose, the druggist, at 303 Central Ave., Minneapolis, and bought a bottle, took it, noticed results and continued taking it until I was entirely cured.

Having been free from any kidney trouble for over six years, I consider that I am absolutely cured and know that Dr. Kliner's Swamp-Root has the credit.

I never fail to tell my friends about your remedy, as I believe it is the best of its kind. Your U & O Ointment is also very good. We are never without a jar in our house.

Yours very truly,
MRS. MARGARET E. ANDERSON,
Minneapolis, Minn.

Personally appeared before me this 23rd day of Sept. 1909, Mrs. Margaret E. Anderson of the City of Minneapolis of the State of Minnesota, who subscribed the above, and on oath says that the same is true in substance and in fact.

George W. Lederer, who gave this country its first theatrical review when he produced "The Passing Show," and followed the innovation with the form of early musical comedy that established his first fame and that of the New York Casino, where he produced it during many successive seasons—a form that "The House of New York" and its successors have just projected still another kind of musical play in "Madam Sherry," so now in model that New York is going and over it.

Described on the programme as a French vaudeville, "Madam Sherry"—the latest Lederer masterpiece—differs from the former Casino manager's output in that instead of playing the chorus up, that is, making it a dominant element of the piece, he represents it in numbers, importance and action until it is scarcely more conspicuous than an added bit of scenery.

The success of the Lederer novelty will undoubtedly affect the musical comedy of the country, for already three musical pieces modeled after its lines, all instituted since "Madam Sherry's" hit, are occupying New York stages.

"Madam Sherry" will be played here by the New York Amsterdam Theatre company on Friday, May 2, at Myers Theatre for one performance.

Trees in English Town.

The trees in the streets form a special feature of Folkestone, England. About 4,000 in number, they include handsome horse chestnuts, elms, planes, sycamores and limes. In Castle Hill avenue, a hundred feet wide, with four rows of trees, the horse chestnuts make a fine show, especially at the blossoming period.

Sport Notes.

"Many a man," said Uncle Eben, "thinks he's havin' a tremendous big time as a sport when he is merely gainin' through de imitation of de 'Down-and-Out' club."

Devil Fish of Great Size.

Devil fish weighing up to 300 pounds are sometimes caught in Japan. These fish are amphibious; they are often seen wobbling on their tentacles like giant spiders in search of patches of sweet potatoes. The natives kill them with clubs. In the water they are caught in jars lowered to the bottom, which the octopus enters thinking it a good retreat from which to catch its food.

YOUR FORTUNE WAITS FOR YOU.

This Is Your Opportunity

Read the following proposition and see the gate to golden opportunity opening before you. Investigate it and you will step through and make an investment which will richly repay you in the near future.

We are giving you facts, not hot air, and if you will investigate for yourself you will never regret any money spent on the proposition.

As An Investment.

Money invested in land is as safe as it can be anywhere, and still earn a dividend for the owner. Land is advancing in value and price each day and is making this advance by leaps and bounds. In order to become rich now, or at least to gain a competency, one must invest his money in something on which he can take advantage of the rise in value, therefore a great many men are turning to land, and the words "Back to the Farm" have almost become a cliché.

Just now the tide of emigration is turning towards Manitoba, and it is estimated by very conservative people that at least 1000 people per day are passing through Winnipeg on their way to the fertile lands lying north and west of that city.

Location and Advantages

Manitoba, in which province is located the Dauphin Lake country, is located in the central part of Canada directly north of Minnesota and North Dakota, and has for its capital and largest city, Winnipeg, a cosmopolitan city of at least 150,000 people. Winnipeg has had a most wonderful growth. In 1870 it was a frontier trading post with a population of 215 souls. This growth is on account of the rich farming country surrounding it on every side.

The Dauphin Lake country to which we wish to direct the attention of the reader is just 140 miles from this city. The climate of this country is delightful as it enjoys sunshine the entire year. The autumns are long and delightful, growing weather extending into November. Winter only lasts three or four months and seedling season begins about the middle of April.

The annual rain fall is 21.5 inches, which is sufficient for all crops.

Not a Frontier Country

Many people think because Manitoba is in Canada that it is on the frontier. This is an erroneous impression, as the farmers of Canada enjoy their telephones, rural mail delivery, and automobiles, as they do in this country.

Soil and Surface

The surface of the Dauphin Lake district is not a flat, bare stretch a "bald headed prairie," but is a beautiful undulating country of prairie and forest intermixed.

The soil is a deep, rich loam, inexhaustible in its productiveness and essentially agricultural. There are about 25 million acres available for cultivation, about one-fifth of which was under crop in 1909.

Immense Production

Nearly all crops can be grown in the Dauphin Lake country which can be grown in Wisconsin, and owing to the extreme fertility of the soil, the yield is a great deal heavier per acre than it is in Rock County. The 16-acre average production of wheat was 21.5 bu. per acre, although many of the farms yielded as high as 50 bu. to the acre. Oats average over 40 bu. to the acre, and have been known to have gone as

MILTON COLLEGE LOST THE SERIES

Strong High School Team Took Two Out of Three Games of the Series Final Game Decides.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milton, April 25.—A fair sized crowd turned out yesterday to see the last of a series of three games between the local school lines. As each team had won a hotly contested game considerable interest was aroused over the final diamond battle of the series. As Crandall won his game against the high school last week he was selected to do the slab work again for the college men, but got a poor start. Singles by Traynor and Zanzinger followed by a perfect bunt that Randolph beat out, netting the highs two runs in the first inning. The college came back in their half of the session and tied the score, but the high school soon regained the lead and held it until the end. Crandall grew stronger as the game progressed, striking out fourteen men, but allowed eight hits which, coupled with loose fielding on the part of the collegians, gave their opponents the game. For the high school both Garrigus and Miller did good work in the box, allowing only seven hits and striking out eleven men. The score:

College .. 2 0 1 1 0 1 0 0 0—5 7 7
Highs .. 2 2 0 1 0 0 2 0 0—7 8 3
Summary: Two base hits—Traynor, Hull, Thorngate; three base hits—Selden and North; hit by pitched ball—Miller, Yates, Burdick, Gaby; struck out by Miller 4, by Crandall 14, by Garrigus 7; double play, Traynor to Decay of Stone Monuments.

The decay of stone monuments is a more complex effect than has been supposed, and Dr. T. Anderson of York, England, finds that the crumbling of some stonework is due to the growth of bacilli. This cause seems to be responsible for much destruction commonly attributed to the weather. The organisms evidently thrive on the chemical substances of smoke and soot, but the extent of their influence is not yet determined.

PETTY SINS THAT WORRY

Those We Are Inclined to Pamper and Stroke the Hard Ones to Get Rid Of.

What is your pet sin, and is it a comfortable one to live with? We are not speaking of the terrible sins of life, for they are at once too big and too ferocious for even the most daring to coddle. Their function is to ravage and devastate. It is the petty sin we are inclined to pamper and stroke, which we find difficult to rid ourselves of.

Does it not, like our pet economy, cost us more than it is worth? Does it, in fact, or meanness, or any really petty trait pay one to give it house room? If they made comfortable or entertaining guests, then one could understand the tolerance with which many people house them, but they are neither.

They are the kind of guests that, once allowed your door, take possession of your house. You cannot confine them to a small back room, where no one will see them, for they insist upon forcing themselves into every situation, and no crack or corner is free from their hateful presence.

The longer you allow them to stay the more loath they are to depart. To coddle them is fatal. The only way to treat them is to never let them get a foothold in your house, or if they succeed in establishing themselves to turn them out the moment you discover them.

The question is, does it pay to have guests so objectionable staying in one's house? Is it not really a terrible nuisance to be ashamed of them, yet continue to have them about? And, is it not embarrassing to have insistently show her smirking face when truth is calling on one, or to have meanness obtrude her ugly head when generally knocks at one's door?

And they are as expensive as they are ill-mannered, these troublesome guests. They demand all sorts of things. One is constantly giving in to them. They are never satisfied. So why does one ever take them under one's roof at all?

Incidentally it is famous for complicating one's life and landing one in embarrassing situations, while meanness never makes a friend and is always disagreeable. It is better for a girl to turn a deaf ear to all their advances.

They will seek in a hundred different ways to enter your house, but just remember this, that if you have them then truth, generosity, sweetness and joy will refuse to visit you.

The Vacant Literary Throne.

There is, we must admit, today no monarch in any tongue upon the literary throne, no sovereign world-ruler in poetry or prose, in whom as has happened before now not so many generations ago, in royal succession, to Scott, Byron, Goethe, V. Hugo, Tolstoy—all the civilized world, Teuton, Latin, Celt, Slav, Oriental, are interested, for whose new works it looks, or where it seeks the gospel of the day. Nabokov, to use an Irish word that became a favorite with Mr. Walter Scott; it does not matter. Do not let us nurse the humor of the dependent editor who mournfully told his readers, "No new epic this month."

Nobody can tell how the wonders of languages are performed, nor how a book comes into the world. Genius is genius. The lamp that today some may think burns low will be replenished. Now or by will bring light. Literature may be treated to take care of itself, for it is the transcript of the drama of life, with all its actors, moods and strange flashing fortunes. The curiosity that it meets in perpetual and insatiable, and the impulses that inspire it can never be extinguished.—John Morley, before the English Association.

More Feminine Frankness.

Marie Hay (Baroness Hinderburg), a young Scotch woman of two great historic families, whose childhood was one of the most extraordinary and tragic with which a future writer of fiction was ever blessed, and an extensive knowledge of the world, has chosen to begin her literary career with the historical novel, or, to be more accurate, the fictional biography; but beyond accepting the form she adheres to none of the popular recipes.

With the curious attitude to life that all Americans who have lived in England have observed in men and women of her rank, she assumes that, like the rest of the privileged class, she dwells in a separate and rarefied stratum. No laws exist for her! If she has anything to say who says it, and results are not even considered. Being a consummate woman of the world, however, she exercises this prerogative and causes her diplomatic husband no embarrassment. It is all a question of taste, and probably it is only in women of the world that taste is unerring.—North American Review.

A Sincere Compliment.

"Did you hear my speech on the extreme importance of anything in which I decide to interest myself?" inquired the minor official.

"I did," replied the experienced legislator.

"Add what did you think of it?"

"It was all right, but misplaced. You save some of the finest filibustering material I ever listened to."

The Hasty Word.

One trouble with a word spoken in haste is that an ink eraser has no effect on it.

NEW OPPORTUNITIES IN AN OLD BUSINESS.

At left, specimen of pottery turned out by the students of the University of Illinois. Upper right, President Edmund James. Lower right, group of students at work.

Urbana, Ill.—The University of Illinois in 1905 opened a School of Ceramics in response to a well defined demand. Since then the difficulty has been to hold the students until graduation; as soon as they had any degree of technical knowledge they were in immediate demand by manufacturers willing to pay salaries far in advance of those offered men in other fields of endeavor.

There is good reason for this. In many an American clay bank, limestone quarry or sand pit a fortune resides, dumb and comfortable; perfectly willing to wait another year or two until some man arrives to claim it. To realize this we must know that these products of the earth are made to yield through the agency of human labor and skill the many kinds of clay products, cement and glazes in its various shapes and colors. The study of the processes and of the scientific basis involved in these industries is the modern technology of Ceramics.

Consider the single example of enameled bricks and tiles which are so prominent in modern structures aiming at aseptic perfection. Most of the enamel brick manufacturers in this country are of foreign birth. They have brought their experience and their recipes with them and they have adapted them painfully and sometimes stupidly, for they have not dared to tamper with them any more than was necessary. As a result the better results among manufacturers that we must go to Europe to get clay for our glazes and our "slips," as the porcelain-like impervious coatings are called. Now this is a fact—an economic fact, too, especially if you are a young man desirous of doing something new and worth while—if Europe were to prohibit the exportation of her clays entirely tomorrow, American whiteware potters and enameled brick makers could keep right on in their business, nor would there be any serious drop in the quality of their product.

R. T. Stull of the Illinois School of Ceramics found in his experiments that many of the American fire clays were well adapted to the manufacture of enameled brick if properly prepared. Old mother nature seldom makes it easy for her children. She requires a certain amount of coaxing and pampering before she can bend her pride to their purpose. Now clays to be transformed successfully into enamel bricks must possess low shrinkage; it was found that various American clays if enameled clay were added to diminish the natural shrinkage would work up into an excellent product. Again he worked out a practical method of applying a porcelain facing to bricks and other clay products, the body of which consists of a cheap clay. Great interest has already been manifested in this work by manufacturers. It does not require much imagination to understand the bearing of this invention upon the attainment of modern sanitary and aseptic conditions in every day life.

This will show the practical nature of the work being done in the School of Ceramics—work that will end in keeping within the state's many dollars the now float elsewhere. For the citizens of Illinois buy each year $20,000,000 worth of bricks and other clay products from other states and other countries. This could be spent almost entirely within our borders if her unused clay banks were forced to give up their treasure. Not is Illinois the only state wealthy in clay. Sometimes it seems that a locality must prove itself a failure in every other way before the clay banks are given a chance.

The School of Ceramics offers instruction and laboratory work in nine courses dealing with the manufacture of all kinds of clay products from the common building brick, drain tiles, terra cotta, fire brick, etc., to the highest grade of porcelain and art ware, Portland cement, stucco, plaster, glass and enameled iron. A student who succeeds in these courses requires all the intelligence a good head can bring to it. But for students of such caliber it undoubtedly offers an attractive, increased and remunerative field of work. The instructors are men of enthusiasm, each with his own pet problem.

Recent bulletins issued by the department deal with some of the physical and chemical changes that take place in clays due to the influence of heat at lower temperatures. These have been found to be of commercial and theoretical importance. A. V. Reininger and J. M. Knute are the authors. Often it is found necessary to combine several clays that one may overcome the bad habits of another. This is the practice of the white ware potters and it is thoroughly wise and sound. The Illinois experimenters produced satisfactory porcelain with Georgia and North Carolina kaolin and Tennessee ball clay.

Glazes which are of the utmost importance in the manufacture of clay products have been given close attention. A class in glazes constructed all stages from clear color through opalescence to opaque white. A number of experiments for the glaze classes have also been made with very encouraging results; a few of them have real beauty, proving that Illinois fire clay will certainly be turned into objects of art when the artist appears. There are in Illinois also deposits of glass and cement making materials, which could be mined at so low a cost that a manufacturer could hardly fail of good profits. I refer to the clays and fire clays associated with the coal horizon which, if they were mined would in turn reduce the cost of coal mining, both in underground and strip mining.

Besides the courses given by the School of Ceramics, instruction and help is given her students interested in clays in other ways. An extensive correspondence is carried on with people interested in the clay industries of the state and they are invited to present their problems and tell of their successes. The school also gives an annual manufacturers' institute where the instructors tell what they know to the men of commerce; and incidentally draw out of the men of commerce all that they have found out. It is a very practical example of how the gap between the universities and men of affairs in the business world is being bridged.

Wall Paper and Germs.

At Bayonne, N. J., they find that wall paper holds and harbors disease germs, and hereafter new wall paper will not be pasted over the old, if the board of health has a say in it. It is not exactly new that wall paper is a good breeding place for germs, but Bayonne seems to be the first town to try to fight wall paper as an sanitary.

For Afternoon Teas.

Have you ever tried toast sandwiches with the cup of tea you serve your friends in the afternoon? Make small, dainty sandwiches, spread with butter and a layer of marmalade or thinly sliced cheese. Put them on pie tins and then under your gas broiler, and when lightly toasted on one side, turn and toast the other. The cheese will be just melted enough to be deliciously appetizing.

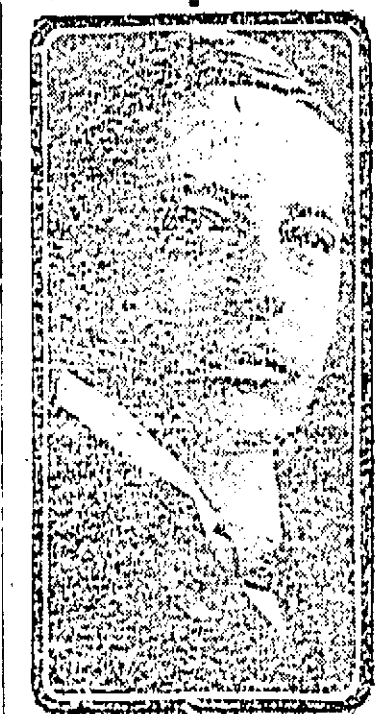

Pantomime Golf.

To play behind a four-pane compass of Frenchmen one must resign all attempt to play golf, and in place of it you must feel that you are compensated by watching the pantomime of the quartet preceding you. Trust me, you will be amply repaid. That is, if nature has endowed you with a sense of humor.—Golf Illustrated.

Amplifying the Idea.

"Young Moselkiss has bought a patch of ground in the suburbs and thinks he is going to get rich on it. He's a crank on what they call intensive farming."

"Yes, and he goes in for intensive courtship. He has just married a girl he never saw until a week ago."

EX-GOV. CURTIS GUILD, JR.

To be named Ambassador to Russia. Washington, D. C.—President Taft will send to the senate the nomination of former Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., of Massachusetts, as ambassador to Russia, and W. W. Rockhill as ambassador to Turkey. Mr. Rockhill now is ambassador to Russia.

Mr. Guild is an intimate and personal friend of President Taft. He was appointed by the president as special ambassador to Mexico at the time of the centennial celebration of the foundation of that republic.

Mr. Rockhill will succeed Oscar S. Strauss, who was secretary of the department of commerce and labor under President Roosevelt. Mr. Strauss resigned the ambassadorship to Turkey several months ago.

CHAPTER II

The Scene of Tragedy.

Whatever might be the nature of the tragedy it would be over with long before this, and those moving black spots away yonder to the west, that he had discerned from the bluff, were undoubtedly the departing raiders. There was nothing left for Keith to do except determine the fate of the unfortunate, and give their bodies decent burial. That any had escaped, or yet lived, was altogether unlikely, unless, perchance, women had been in the party, in which case they would have been borne away prisoners.

Confident that no hostiles would be left behind to observe his movements, Keith pressed steadily forward, leading his horse. He had thus traversed fully half a mile before coming upon any evidence of a fight—here the pursuers had apparently come up with the wagons, and circled out upon either side. From their pointed tracks there must have been a dozen in the band. Perhaps a hundred yards further along lay two dead ponies. Keith examined them closely—both had been ridden with saddle, the marks of the cinches plainly visible. Evidently one of the wagon mules had also been dropped in the traces here, and had been dragged along by his mates. Just beyond came a sudden depression in the prairie down which the wagons had plunged so heavily as to break one of the axles; the wheel lay a few yards away, and, somewhat to the right, there lay the wreck of the wagon itself, two dead mules still in the traces, the vehicle stripped of contents and charred by fire. A hundred feet further along was the other wagon, its tongue broken, the canvas top ripped open, while between the two were scattered odds and ends of wearing apparel and provisions, with a pile of boxes smoking grimly. The remaining mules were gone, and no semblance of life remained anywhere. Keith dropped his reins over his horse's head, and, with Winchester cocked and ready, advanced cautiously.

Death from violence had long since become almost a commonplace occurrence to Keith, yet now he shrank for an instant as his eyes perceived the figure of a man lying motionless across the broken wagon tongue. The grizzled hair and beard were streaked with blood, the face almost unrecognizable, while the hands yet grasped a bent and shattered rifle. Evidently the man had died fighting, beaten down by overwhelming numbers after expending his last shot. Then those hands had scalped and left him where he fell. Fifty feet beyond, shot in the back, lay a younger man, doubled up in a heap, also scalped and dead. That was all; Keith scouted over a wide circle, even scanning the stretch of gravel under the river bank, before he could fully satisfy himself there were no others in the party. It seemed impossible that these two traveling alone would have ventured upon such a trip in the face of known Indian hostility. Yet they must have done so, and once again his lips muttered: "Of all the blame fools!"

Suddenly he halted, staring about over the prairie, obsessed by a new thought, an aroused suspicion. There had appeared merely the hoof-prints of the one horse alongside of the fleeing wagons when they first turned out from the trail, and that horse had been now shot. But there were two dead ponies lying back yonder; neither shot, yet both had borne saddles. More than this, they had been spurred, the blood marks still plainly visible, and one of them was branded; he remembered it now, a star and arrow. What could all this portend? Was it possible this attack was no Indian affair after all? Was the disfiguring of bodies, the scalping, merely done to make it appear the act of savages? Driven to investigation by this suspicion, he passed again over the trampled ground, marking this time every separate indentation, every faintest imprint of hoof or foot, there was no impression of a moccasin anywhere; every mark remaining was of booted feet. The inference was sufficiently plain—this had been the deed of white men, not of red; foul murder, and not savage war.

The knowledge seemed to sear Keith's brain with fire, and he sprang to his feet, hands clinched and eyes blazing. He could have believed this of Indians, it was according to their nature, their method of warfare; but the cowardliness of it, the atrocity of the act, as perpetrated by men of his own race, instantly aroused within him a desire for vengeance. He wanted to run the fellows down, to discover their identity. Without thinking of personal danger he ran forward on their trail, which led directly westward, along the line of cottonwoods. These served to conceal his own movements, yet for the moment, burning with passion, he was utterly without caution, without slightest sense of peril. He must know who was guilty of such a crime; he felt capable of killing them even as he would venomous snakes. It was a perfectly plain trail to follow, for the fugitives, apparently convinced of safety, and confident their cowardly deed would be charged to Indian raiders, had made no particular effort at concealment, but had ridden away at a gallop, their horses' hoofs digging deeply into the soft turf. On this retreat they had followed closely along the river bank, aiming for the ford, and almost before he realized it Keith was himself at the water's edge where the trail abruptly ended, staring vaguely across toward the opposite shore. Even as he stood there, realizing the futility of further pursuit amid the maze of sand dunes opposite, the sharp reports of two rifles reached him, spurts of smoke rose from the further bank, and a bullet chugged into the ground at his feet, while another sang shrilly overhead.

These shots, although neither came sufficiently near to be alarming, served to send Keith to cover. Cool-headed and alert now, his first mad rage dissipated, he scanned the opposite bank cautiously, but could nowhere discover any evidence of life. Little by little he comprehended the situation, and decided upon his own action. The fugitives were aware of his presence, and would prevent his crossing the stream, yet they were not at all liable to return to this side and thus reveal their identity. To attempt any further advance would be madness, but he felt perfectly secure from molestation so long as he remained quietly on the north shore. Those shots were merely a warning to keep back; the very fact that the men firing kept concealed was proof positive that they simply wished to be left alone. They were not afraid of what he knew now, only desirous of not being seen. Confident as to this, he retreated openly, without making the slightest effort to conceal his movements, until he had regained the scene of murder. In evidence of the truth of his theory no further shots were fired, and although he watched that opposite bank carefully, not the slightest movement revealed the presence of others. That every motion he made was being observed by keen eyes he had no doubt, but this knowledge did not disconcert him; now that he felt convinced fear of revelation would keep his watchers at a safe distance. Whoever they might be they were evidently men anxious to escape discovery than he was fearful of attack, and possessed no desire to take his life, unless it became necessary to prevent recognition. They still had every reason to believe their attack on the wagons would be credited to hostile Indians, and would consider it far safer to remain concealed, and thus harbor this suspicion. They could not suspect that Keith had already stumbled upon the truth, and was determined to verify it.

Secure in this conception of the situation, yet still keeping a wary eye about to guard against any treachery, the plateglass, discovering a speck in the nearest wagon, hastily dug a hole in the sand, wrapped the dead bodies in blankets, and deposited them there, piling above the mound the charred remains of boxes as some slight protection against prowling wolves. He searched the clothing of the men, but found little to reward the effort, a few letters which were slipped into his pockets to be read later, some ordinary trinkets hardly worth preserving except that they might assist in identifying the victims, and, about the neck of the older man, a rather peculiar locket, containing a portrait painted on ivory. Keith was a long time opening this, the spring being very ingeniously concealed, but upon finally succeeding, he looked upon the features of a woman of middle age, a strong mature face of marked refinement, exceedingly attractive still, with smiling dark eyes, and a perfect wealth of reddish brown hair. He held the locket open in his hand for several minutes, wondering who she could be, and what possible connection she could have held with the dead. Something about that face smiling up into his own held peculiar fascination for him, gripping him with a strange feeling of familiarity, touching some old memory which failed to respond. Surely he had never seen the original, for she was not one to be easily forgotten, and yet eyes, hair, expression, combined to remind him of some one whom he had seen but could not bring definitely to mind. There were no names on the locket, no marks of identification of any kind, yet realizing the sacredness of it, Keith slipped the fragile gold chain about his neck, and securely hid the trinket beneath his shirt.

It was noon by this time, the sun high overhead, and his horse, with dauntless rein, still nibbling daintily at the short grass. There was no reason for his lingering longer. He swept his gaze the length and breadth of the desolate valley, and across the river over the sand hills. All alike appeared deserted, not a moving thing being visible between the bluffs and the stream. Still he had the unpleasant feeling of being watched, and it made him restless and eager to be away. The earlier gust of anger, the spirit of revenge, had left him, but it had merely changed into a dogged resolution to discover the perpetrators of this outrage and bring them to justice for the crime. The face in the locket seemed to ask it of him, and his nature urged response. But he could hope to accomplish nothing more here, and the plainman swung himself into the saddle. He turned his horse's head eastward, and rode away. From the deeply rutted trail he looked back to where the fire still smoked in the midst of that desolate silence.

CHAPTER III

An Arrest

The Santa Fe trail was far too exposed to be safely traveled alone and in broad daylight, but Keith considered it better to put sufficient space between himself and those whom he felt confident were still watching his movements from across the river. How much they might already suspect his discoveries he possessed no means of knowing, yet, conscious of their own guilt, they might easily feel safer if he were also put out of the way. He had no anticipation of open attack, but must guard against treachery. As he rode, his eyes never left those far-away sand dunes, although he perceived no movement, no black dot even which he could conceive to be a possible enemy. Now that he possessed ample time for thought, the situation became more puzzling. This tragedy which he had accidentally stumbled upon must have had a cause other than blind chance. It was the culmination of a plot, with some reason behind more important than ordinary robbery. Apparently the wagons contained nothing of value, merely the clothing, provisions, and ordinary utensils of an emigrant party. Nor had the victims' pockets been carefully searched. Only the mules had been taken by the raiders, and they would be small booty for such a crime.

The trail, continually skirting the high bluff and bearing farther away from the river, turned sharply into a narrow ravine. There was a considerable break in the rocky barrier here, leading back for perhaps a hundred yards, and the plainman turned his horse that way, dismounting when out of sight among the boulders. He could rest here until night with little danger of discovery. He lay down on the rocks, pillowing his head on the saddle, but his brain was too active to permit sleeping. Finally he drew the letters from out his pocket, and began examining them. They yielded very little information, those taken from the older man having no envelopes to show to whom they had been addressed. The single document found in the pocket of the other was a memorandum of account at the Pioneer Store at Topeka, charged to John Sibley, and marked paid. This then must have been the younger man's name, as the letters to the other began occasionally "Dear Will." They were missives such as a wife might write to a husband long absent, yet upon a mission of deep interest to both. Keith could not fully determine what this mission might be, as the persons evidently understood each other so thoroughly that mere allusion took the place of detail. Twice the name Phyllis was mentioned, and once a "Fred" was also referred to, but in neither instance clearly enough to reveal the relationship, although the latter appeared to be pledged for certain references caused the bullet that these letters had been mailed from some small Missouri town, but no name was mentioned. They were invariably signed "Mary." The only other paper Keith discovered was a brief itinerary of the Santa Fe trail extending as far west as the Indian Mountains, giving the usual camping spots and places where water was accessible. He slipped the papers back into his pocket with a distinct feeling of disappointment, and lay back staring up at the little strip of blue sky. The silence was profound, even his horse standing motionless, and finally he fell asleep.

The sun had disappeared, and even the gray of twilight was fading out of the sky, when Keith returned again to consciousness, aroused by his horse rolling on the soft turf. He awoke thoroughly refreshed, and eager to get away on his long night's ride. A cold lunch, hastily eaten, for a fire would have been dangerous, and he saddled up and was off, trotting out of the narrow ravine and into the broad trail, which could be followed without difficulty under the dull gleam of the stars. Horse and rider were soon at their best, the animal swinging untroubled into the long, easy lope of prairie travel, the fresh air fanning the man's face as he leaned forward. Once they halted to drink from a narrow stream, and then pushed on hour after hour, through the deserted night. Keith had little fear of Indian raiders in that darkness, and every stride of his horse brought him closer to the settlements and further removed from danger. Yet eyes and ears were alert to every shadow and sound. Once, it must have been after midnight, he drew his pony sharply back into a rock shadow at the noise of something approaching from the east. The stage to Santa Fe rattled past, the four mules trotting swiftly, a squad of troopers riding hard behind. It was merely a lulling shadow sweeping swiftly past; he could perceive the dim outlines of driver and guard, the soldiers swaying in their saddles, heard the pounding of hoofs, the creak of axles, and then the apparition disappeared into the black void. He had not called out—what was the use? Those people would never pause to hunt down prairie outlaws, and their guard was sufficient to prevent attack. They acknowledged but one duty—to get the mail through on time.

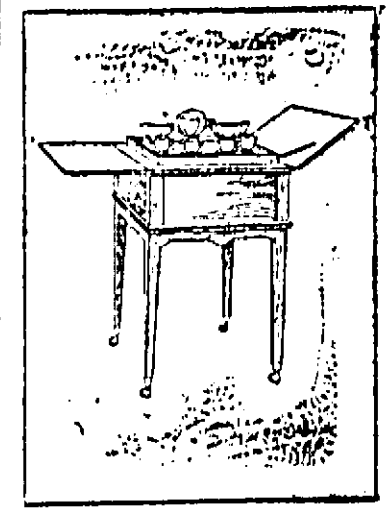

The dust of their passing still in the air, Keith rode on, the noise dying away in his rear. As the hours passed, his horse wearied and had to be spurred into the swifter stride, but the man seemed tireless. The sun was an hour high when they climbed the long hill and rode into Carson City.

The emigrant was to the city, but Keith, having no report to make, rode directly ahead down the one long street to a livery corral, leaving his horse there, and sought the nearest restaurant.

FOLDING TEA TABLE

Top Closes Over and Dishes Sink Out of Sight in Body.

Mr. John Keith, former head master of London, has just been presented with a tea table like that in the illustration by the city corporation of that city. That fact alone would recommend the table to some people, but it happens to have merits of its own. The big feature of this piece of furniture is that it "clears away" itself. The two end pieces that form part of the top, instead of folding down along the sides as they do in most tables of this kind, turn up and fold CLEAR AWAY ITSELF. down in the center, allowing the center portion to sink into the body, as they do, and all the dishes thereon disappear in the twinkling of an eye, leaving a table on which a rubber of what may be played. Later, when the guests have gone, the dishes can be removed from the interior of the table and washed.

The Simple Life. The simple life, then, seems to come to this—the attachment of oneself in absolute devotion to the great things, to the real and the true things, the embarking of our whole fortunes in them, whatever may happen. What we eat, drink or wear will not greatly trouble us.—Christian World.

Milk-Drinking New Yorkers. The inhabitants of New York city consume much more milk than do the citizens of London. It is computed that each Londoner drinks one-fifth of a pint of milk each day, while the average New Yorker uses considerably more than half a pint.

Janesville As A Horse Market

For years Janesville has been noted for its fine horses and in the days of trotting meetings no track had a better reputation than the one located here. Even now strangers are quick to notice the splendid animals driven daily through the streets. Horse buyers from the cities make regular visits, and their purchases run into many thousands of dollars yearly. As a horse market Janesville is the center of an important section which produces some of the best bred animals the country knows.

Probably nothing is of more universal interest than good horse flesh. Why not let your friends know that Janesville is the center of a territory noted for its high bred horses? Cut this out and send it to him.

THE REASON.
"Gracious! man! On your honeymoon trip and looking so worried?"
"Yes, it keeps me worried trying to think up things to do to make people believe I'm not just married."

THEN IT HAPPENED.
"What made you think he would propose to me?"
"Why, when I refused him he said he didn't care what became of him; but, perhaps, he wasn't serious."

GREAT LOVE STORIES of HISTORY

By Albert Payson Terhune

Theodora and Justinian

The Roman capital of Constantinople in 525 A. D. was agitated at the news that the consul, Justinian (nephew and heir to the Emperor Justin I.) was to marry Theodora, the famous actress whose clever performances at the "Circus" had for years set the city in a roar of laughter.

For an emperor's heir to make an actress his wife was not only scandalous, but illegal as well. People began to inquire into Theodora's past life. Many of the facts they dug up were of too unsavory a nature to bear repetition. But they learned also that she was one of the three daughters of a brutal fellow who had been keeper of the wild beasts in the menagerie under the Circus building. When Theodora was only seven her father had died. The child was an impish, gay little creature with a genius for mischief. So she had been put on the stage. She could not sing or dance, but she was a born comedian. She grew to womanhood, small, thin and pale. Scarcely the sort of girl to attract the attention of the emperor's nephew.

Rome, since the days of Nero, had grown so great in size and wealth that it had at last split in two because of its own unwieldy bulk, and was divided into the eastern and western empires. The western empire (with the city of Rome as its capital) was soon overrun by barbarian tribes. But the eastern empire remained. The actress who flourished for many centuries, Justinian, a Dacian peasant, had fought his way up from the ranks to the command of the army. Then he had made himself emperor and had proclaimed Justinian his heir. Justinian was a wise man, but lacking in firmness. The sort of a man that a clever woman could manage to suit herself. Theodora won his love and pointed out to him a plan by which they two might become emperor and empress. His uncle's wife, the Empress Euphemia, sternly forbade the match. But this did not stand in Theodora's way. For Euphemia died rather suddenly. Justinian was old and as much under Justinian's influence as the latter was under Theodora's.

The rest was plain sailing. Justinian was persuaded to set aside the law forbidding a prince to marry an actress. Theodora and Justinian thus were married in 525, when the girl was only 17. Two years later Justinian died. Theodora made her husband, the new emperor, crown her as empress. Then she proceeded to do the lion's share of the ruling, interfering and having her way in nearly all state affairs. The civilized world was thus for a time swayed by an actress' whims. Nor was she as bad an empress as her early life would have seemed to forecast. She aided her husband to frame the celebrated "Justinian Code" of laws and in many ways helped make his reign great.

She attracted some notoriety by declaring herself the champion of widows whose husbands sought to divorce them, and she started besides a sort of royal "marriage bureau." Match-making was her fad, and certainly no one could have set a brighter example from her own success along that line. Justinian's love for her did not cool as the years went by. And she probably made him a fairly good wife.

Once when revolutionists seized Constantinople and clamored at the palace gates Justinian was wild with fear and decided to creep to the shore unobserved and save his life by flight. Then it was that Theodora threw away the diplomatic tactics by which she had won and managed her husband. For once in her life she let him feel the lash of her scorn, and couched her speech in the language of the stage instead of that of the stately court. She bade him fly if he chose, but told him that death was nobler for a monarch than exile, and vowed that she would not stir from her throne, preferring, as she said, to "make empire her bed."

Quarrel of the winding sheet. Justinian, stung into courage, stuck to his post, and thereby saved his crown. Once only he is said to have taunted her in anger with her humble parentage. She is reported to have answered that her father was quite as well born as her husband's grandfather, who had been a rude peasant.

Indeed, few dared to remind Theodora of her past. She had a way of putting to death persons who brought up the subject. For 23 years this strange pair of lovers governed most of the civilized world. Then, at the age of 40, Theodora died. The generally accepted story of her fate is that she fell victim to cancer. But some authorities hint that she tried to "manage" her elderly husband once too often and without her earlier tact, and that he, in a fit of rage, had her beheaded.

Austria to Build Airships.

The first Austrian airship construction company has just been formed with a capital of 300,000 kronen, and it is understood that the war office is immediately placing an order for a dirigible. The constitution of the company is largely due to the fact that the efforts of the government to obtain a dirigible from Germany during the recent crisis failed.

India's Cultivation of Sugar Cane.
India has a larger area under cane than any other country, and yet is one of the heaviest importers of sugar. There was a time when India manufactured practically all the sugar it required, which was used in the form of molasses, but a taste for refined sugar sprang up, since which time it was found more convenient to import than to manufacture.

EARNING HIS WAY THROUGH LIFE

"How does it happen, Willie?" asked the boy's teacher, "that you always have so much money?"
"I earn it." "You earn it? How?"
"By takin' medicine. Pa paid me 50 cents for takin' a bottle of some kind of oil with a fishy taste, and ma gave me a quarter for takin' a bottle of something with iron in it, and I was tryin' to get grandpa to give me a dollar for takin' a quinine pill every night for a month. If I can't get her to make the bargain I'm goin' to let pa give me a dime a day for takin' malt or some thin'."

Get Age Limit on Marriage.
According to Russian law no man or woman who has attained the age of eighty can contract a legal marriage. No other country nowadays imposes such a restriction. In ancient Rome, however, legislation on this point was even more stringent, the maximum age limit for men being sixty and for women fifty.

No Precedent for Maria.

"No," said the lady on the stairway, and she spoke with extreme distinctness, "your excuses will not be received and filed."
"But haven't you any sympathy in your cold heart, Maria?" exclaimed the limp and drooping arrival.
The clock struck two.
"This is not the United States senate, James Pilkew," replied the lady with extreme sarcasm. "You'll get just what's coming to you without a single tear!"
And she ascended the stairway.

Then He Sat Down.
A visitor to a village school told to the children: "I want to tell you of a boy I once knew. He had a good father and mother, and they did all that lay in their power to make him happy. But the boy was thoughtless and selfish; he frittered away his time and never thought of the future. Today, instead of being an honorable and useful position in life, where do you suppose he stands, children, as a man?" "He stands before us!" shouted the boys and girls in unison.

What's in a Name?
An amusing story has been told concerning Mr. Phillips' classic drama, "Elysium." When it was being played in America, two young girls were sitting together in the stalls at a matinee performance, and before the curtain rose the following conversation was heard: "Say, Maude, I know this play is going to be funny." "What makes you think so?" asked Maude. "Why, anybody could tell that from the name!" was the reply.—M. A. P.
